Young CEO Siti Kamariah Reveals How Humble Beginnings Defined Her Future (Cemerlang: 6 March 2022)

Rising from humble beginnings Siti Kamariah Ahmad Subki showed how a deep sense of responsibility as a daughter and love could create a powerful will to succeed in life.

Siti Kamariah, who grew up at a low-cost flat at Section 16 Shah Alam, used to help her mother sell nasi lemak and curry puffs and had to wake up as early four in the morning since she was nine years old. She would make curry puffs from scratch within two hours before heading to school at 7.30am.

A KYSER from the class of 1997, she is now the Chief Executive Officer at Selangor Women Empowerment Institute (IWB) as well as a member of the Board of Directors of the International Centre for Education in Islamic Finance (INCEIF). Prior to serving these roles, she is a charted accountant who had a career in PwC, Khazanah and the United Nations.

From left, Dato' Mohd Izani Ghani, Managing Director of UEM Group Bhd; Siti Kamariah Ahmad Subki, CEO of Wanita Berdaya Selangor (Selangor government's umbrella body for women empowerment's initiatives); and Dr Aamir A. Rehman, Partner of Princeton Stone House Capital and Senior Advisor, UNDP

In a Facebook post, Siti Kamariah describes how she had to sell nasi lemak in the housing and factory areas. Her experience helping her mother taught her the importance of organisation, in preparing well before the start of business. She would ensure that all the tongs, plastic bags are ready, had to carry heavy groceries and count "super fast".

Despite having to work, she did not neglect her studies and would do her homework and revisions at the stall.

These were my superpowers. I truly believed it.
Siti Kamariah

Siti Kamariah learnt the value of money and responsibility towards her parents at an early age. At seven years old, she won a prize of stationery and books for achieving straight A's in an examination. She felt pleased as it had lightened the burden of her father who worked at a factory, as that saved RM11 from his hard-earned money.

Soon, all of the siblings entered every contest possible attempting to win prizes, so that their parents would not have to work as hard as they usually do. As a result, these "small" wins would allow their father to come home a little earlier.

Siti Kamariah was later awarded the Yayasan Saad Scholarship and pursued a fully sponsored education in Kolej Yayasan Saad in 1996.

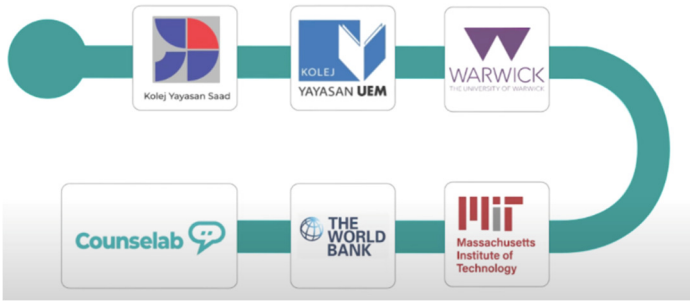

Her humble beginnings and education experience form part of a transformative journey that sealed her future as an impactful individual in the corporate world and the larger community.

Meet the co-founder

Hazim Mohamad studied in the prestigious Kolej Yayasan Saad (KYS) and later pursued his pre-University in the top A-level institution, Kolej Yayasan UEM (KYUEM). He was active in college, having organised the first KYUEM summit that hosted top corporate leaders from around the world.

Having had a rich college experience, Hazim got accepted into the University of Warwick to do his Bachelor's Degree in Finance and Accounting, before completing his Masters in Finance from Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT).

Having had a rich college experience, Hazim got accepted into the University of Warwick to do his Bachelor's Degree in Finance and Accounting, before completing his Masters in Finance from Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT).

He is an angel investor for various companies such as Kyte, Jibble Group and Grainer. He is more well known for his work as a consultant at the World Bank Group and is now the proud founder of Counselab, a marketplace for short, focused 1:1 advising sessions on academic & career topics.

Highlights:

- Hazim was inspired by one of his co-founders, Kaartik Nagarajan who contacted him through Facebook at only 17 years of age asking for advice regarding his education and career path.
- Hazim realised how by just replying and share knowledge with someone could make a difference in their lives.
- He noticed a gap in the market where there was no specific platform for those like Kaartik to seek advice from.
- That was when the idea of Counselab came about.
- The uniqueness of Counselab is that it overcomes three hurdles when engaging an advisor; knowing who to reach out to. If you already know, then how can you be sure if they are open to talking to you and on what topics? Finally, how do you know when they are free for a chat?
- Counselab aims to be a hybrid advisory marketplace and a social network.

- When choosing his employees, he stated that Kaartik's appointment was by fate. At the two year mark of their first conversation, Hazim wrote an article titled "Turning a Fishing Rod into a Fishing Boat". Other members were chosen through mutual contacts and a sheer passion to overcome this problem of inaccessibility for advice.
- His advice for those wanting to pursue similar ventures is to start it as a hobby as he did after the hundreds of calls asking for advice he received over the years.
- It is important to have a verified plan and good time management so that you can do it as a side project at first. Also, think about a specific problem you are passionate about and get co-founders with the same goal and vision who can also complement your attributes.
- The end goal for Counselab is to be the go-to platform for advice on education and career. You can google most things, but it is always beneficial to get advice from someone that was in the same boat as you.
