On the cover

Britain's Brexit crisis has plumbed new depths. Parliament must seize the initiative and get the country out of it: leader, page 9. Conservatives are manoeuvring to replace a broken prime minister: Bagehot, page 52

• Thailand's sham democracy The election marks a new phase in military misrule: leader, page 10. The generals plan to remain in charge, whatever the voters say, page 23

• Goodbye to China's surplus China is switching from being a net lender to the world to being a net borrower. The implications will be profound: leader, page 11. Why a current-account deficit could remake China's financial system, page 61

• A special report on NATO at 70 The Atlantic alliance has proved remarkably resilient, says Daniel Franklin. To remain relevant, it needs to go on changing, after page 40
